Important information relating to substance misuse

Alcohol

If you have physical withdrawal symptoms e.g. shaking, sweating, nausea before you have your first drink of the day get medical advice before you stop drinking. It can be dangerous to stop drinking too quickly without proper support if you are experiencing symptoms of alcohol withdrawal.

Drugs

The virus affects your breathing. Drugs like heroin, methadone and benzos (diazepam, Valium, Xanax) can also affect your breathing and make you more vulnerable to infection and fatal overdose. It is important to keep your naloxone nearby at all times. If you don't have a naloxone kit, speak to your worker.

How to protect yourself and others

Clean any drug packaging, wraps or baggies with alcohol wipes as soon as possible after buying

Wash your hands for at least 20 seconds regularly - and always before preparing or taking drugs

Prepare your own drugs to reduce the risk of infection from others taking drugs

Always prepare drugs on a surface which has been cleaned using antibacterial spray or alcohol wipes or use a temporary surface like kitchen roll or a clean magazine and dispose of it afterwards

Wash injecting sites before and after injecting with soap and water – use swabs before injecting only

Don't share pipes, bongs, vapes, joints, cigarettes, straws or rolled bank notes or injecting equipment

Dispose of all equipment into a sharps bin, do not dip bins

During this time, you may also wish to consider other forms of advice and guidance available via telephone or online to support your recovery and mental health and wellbeing.
